

2009 Blackland Triathlon Emergency & Safety Procedures

The 2009 Blackland Triathlon takes place on an outdoor course. Because the triathlon is held outdoors, there is a risk that severe weather, including heat, or non-weather related emergencies could become a factor.

Should event officials determine that an emergency event or unsafe race situations may affect the triathlon, the race director may a) reroute or shorten the race course in length b) stop participants from competing or not allow participants to begin competing or c) cancel the event and not restart race.

If the triathlon is cancelled after a portion of race has started, HAM radio operators will contact all volunteers on race course who will begin informing participants. If you are informed of an emergency or race cancellation, you must stop immediately & seek nearest shelter. For these reasons, it is important that you stay alert during the race.

Our goal is to provide a safe and fun triathlon. Have a great day of racing!
